A group of TRIO students had the opportunity to travel to Reno, Nevada during Spring break to delve into the profound impact of historical disparities marginalized groups face in higher education. During the break, students explored the historical context of systemic inquiries in higher education and engaged with local communities, organizations, and institutions to witness firsthand the challenges marginalized groups face.

Community partners included University of Reno- Nevada, Inter-Tribal Council of Nevada, Reno-Sparjs Colony, Tribal Minds, and the Stewart Indian School.
Policy Seminar Highlights

Our Associate Director, Bri LeBreton joined with other Utah TRIO leaders at Policy Seminar in DC. The team went to Capitol Hill to promote TRIO programs with Utah legislatures. It was an exciting time spent lobbying and celebrating our students.
