Fall Message

The start of fall semester can be both nerve racking and exciting. Often students feel optimistic uncertainty of what may come. Remember you are not alone, your TRIO family is here for you. As we embark on this journey together, we would like to remind you of your strength and resiliency. You have made it this far, keep going!

Staying Healthy

A new training course titled “Staying Healthy in a Changing Environment” is mandatory for all University of Utah students before the start of the fall semester. Further details and instructions on how to complete this online module can be found below. If you have not done so already, complete this training as soon as possible. Let’s keep each other safe this semester!

Details and location on page 3.
Advising

Advisors will continue to meet with students virtually throughout the fall and are available via phone, video and email. We recommend scheduling an appointment in advance to allow plenty of time to take care of your needs. However, we understand urgent situations can arise, especially during the first week of a new semester. Therefore we will be available for "walk-in" advising August 24 - August 27. No appointment needed, just log on and the next available advisor will meet with you.

To schedule an appointment or connect with an advisor during "walk-in" hours click here.

Tutoring

Free tutoring is available for all TRIO students! We strongly encourage you to sign up now instead of further into the semester. It can get pretty frustrating if you find yourself in need of help and have to wait a few days to get setup. So go ahead and register here.
