As the weather gets warmer, and you are preparing for midterms, TRIO is proud of you! It is not easy to obtain a degree or continue in higher education with all the challenges we face. Our families are vital to our success, and we try our best to support and care for them. We understand as we have family back home in another country, on the Native reservations, or simply in another state, we would like to commend your efforts. We appreciate you and it is not often that you may or may not be acknowledged for all of your hard work this past year. We want you to succeed and we want you to know we are here for you.

Hello, my name is Wendy Vazquez, my preferred pronouns are she/her/hers. I am a student navigator in TRIO Student Support Services.

I am a senior studying Psychology and Criminology. Working with students, seeing them grow, accomplish their goals, while overcoming their daily life challenges are some of the rewarding experiences when working in higher education.

I enjoy new experiences, listening to new music, exploring new places, and learning new things. Fun fact about me; I went to Japan for a whole summer by myself.

Hey y'all, my name is Abdul Mannan, but I go by Abdul to make it easier. I am originally from Pakistan (born there as well) and came here at a very young age.

I am your new student navigator in TRIO Student Support Services. I am a TRIO senior student double majoring in Criminology and Sociology. I will be graduating in spring of 2021 from University of Utah!

I love to play basketball, go hiking, play chess, go exploring and try new things.

Finding a parking spot is one of those daily hassles everyone who drives needs to do. Fortunately, Parq has created a possible solution.

The app allows home and business owners to rent out their unused parking spots. Giving people the opportunity to make passive income while giving users a new way to find parking.

The startup aims to ease the parking process near Universities like the U. As well as targeting parking by ski resorts, events, and other dense areas. As the first peer to peer parking in the Salt Lake Area they have an unique opportunity to provide value to the community.

Now with the Parq app officially launched on IOS and Android, users can register their property and begin making money off their parking spots. They already have partnered up with several businesses and homes near the University of Utah campus and are looking to add more in the upcoming months.

William Pepper, a third year business student, along with his co-founder Juno Kim, a computer science graduate from the U, and Chris Schlierman, an entrepreneur and businessman, are the leading force behind Parq.

They have more information at www.parq.tech.
